Turismo Convencional > HUARAZ

Huaraz is the capital of the Department of Ancash. It is located at 3,210 meters of altitude in the northern region of the Peruvian Andes. It is protected by two large mountain chains: the White Mountain Range and the Black Mountain Range, and its weather is dry and warm during the day but cold at night.

The city of Huaraz is surrounded by impressive snow-capped peaks challenging those interested in Andean climbing, as well as beautiful landscaping providing the scenarios for many adventures. It is located in the middle of the Santa Valley called "Callejon de Huaylas", where the beauty of nature has formed an impressive valley crossed by the Santa River, which offers the opportunity for doing rafting.

Visiting Huaraz also offers the opportunity to visit the nearby Chavin de Huantar complex with its archaeological center dated 1200 B.C.

PAT HUA 013 EXCURSION TO CHAVIN

Start the trip towards the town of Chavin de Huantar where we will tour around the Chavin Archeological complex with its labyrinths and narrow corridors, the monolith known as "El Lanzon", and the famous "Cabezas Clavas" (fastened in heads) of Chavin de Huantar. Stop for lunch and return to Huaraz.
